

The Group

The group was formed in January 1963 specifically to further the rationale of industrial accident prevention. It remains a voluntary organisation with membership from large organisations, small and medium enterprises, educational and government establishments and others interested in furthering the principles of Occupational Health, Safety and the Environment.

Group Functions

Members' premises are used by request on a rotational basis to hold monthly meetings. The Executive Committee arrange speakers and venues covering a variety of topics for the annual programme.

Organisation

The Group is self governing and supporting. We are members of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents and the British Safety Council. It is managed by an Executive Committee elected from representatives of member organisations.

Membership

The annual subscription is currently £30 payable in January. Member organisations may attend monthly meetings with more than one representative if required. Membership is open to all organisations interested in furthering the principles of Health and Safety and the Environment. If more information is required or details on joining the group contact:
